Welcoming the Future

On Sunday (9/12) we will gather to hear a presentation from the Facilities Assessment Committee. This presentation will conclude with a recommendation that we enter into a capital campaign. Ballots passed out and then collected on the following Sunday (9/19). Here are a few thoughts on why we need this particular project at this particular point.

1. God has blessed us with a building, used by our faith community and our broader Saint Louis community – the onus is on us to ensure we treat it like the gift of God that it is.
2. While all of us are theologically sophisticated enough to know that we can meet God in a barn, we also know that we and others are affected by space – by its beauty, size, alignment, etc. I think this project meets both the affective (helping us feel better) and effective (enabling us to do more) objectives which are essential to a church building plan.
3. By making an effort like this we are saying to ourselves and to our community that we know God has a mission for us – and that mission is to continue to be Christ in this place.
4. A line from the Shawshank Redemption is relevant: “We need to get busy living or get busy dying.”
5. I believe, as it’s been almost 7 years since our last major effort, it’s time to stretch ourselves again.
6. The plans, general as they are, clearly enable us to do what we said we wanted to do a year ago: “respect the past, welcome the future” with better hospitality and more certain security. Remember the plans came from a year of discussion and listening to the members and the ministries of KBC.
7. I’m not naïve. This will not be easy and there will be times we wish we had just coasted along. But that is a sure and certain way to “get busy dying.” I do believe that God will bless the sacrifices of our best efforts.

The following are more specific points on which I think we have a consensus. But I want to articulate them here and say how important they are to me:

1. That we dedicate 10% of what we raise to missional causes. This is a tradition at KBC and a very good one. It not only reinforces the idea of the tithe, but it says a good deal about our desire to be a missional congregation. During the last campaign Louise told me over 200K was given to missions (part of which helped start our mission trips, a part of which helped Glendale Memorial Baptist Church).
2. We cannot do this without a consultant – I personally feel very comfortable with John Hewett. His history here and his passion for this place, make him an ideal consultant.
3. We want to stretch ourselves to raise all that God allows, but NOT to borrow all that the bank permits. The amount pledged will ultimately indicate the project scope, and we will not consider excessive long-term debt.

Please take it as a personal mission to think, pray, and talk about KBC’s tomorrow. Congregationally speaking, “I” and “they” do nothing. It is only “we” who can accomplish what God has in store for “us.”
